

Organization Science

Publication details, including instructions for authors and subscription information:
<http://pubsonline.informs.org>

About Authors

To cite this article:

(2004) About Authors. Organization Science 15(6):730-731. <https://doi.org/10.1287/orsc.1040.0104>

Full terms and conditions of use: <https://pubsonline.informs.org/Publications/Librarians-Portal/PubsOnLine-Terms-and-Conditions>

This article may be used only for the purposes of research, teaching, and/or private study. Commercial use or systematic downloading (by robots or other automatic processes) is prohibited without explicit Publisher approval, unless otherwise noted. For more information, contact permissions@informs.org.

The Publisher does not warrant or guarantee the article's accuracy, completeness, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or non-infringement. Descriptions of, or references to, products or publications, or inclusion of an advertisement in this article, neither constitutes nor implies a guarantee, endorsement, or support of claims made of that product, publication, or service.

© 2004 INFORMS

Please scroll down for article—it is on subsequent pages

With 12,500 members from nearly 90 countries, INFORMS is the largest international association of operations research (O.R.) and analytics professionals and students. INFORMS provides unique networking and learning opportunities for individual professionals, and organizations of all types and sizes, to better understand and use O.R. and analytics tools and methods to transform strategic visions and achieve better outcomes. For more information on INFORMS, its publications, membership, or meetings visit <http://www.informs.org>

About Authors

David P. Brandon (“Transactive Memory Systems in Organizations: Matching Tasks, Expertise, and People”) is Coordinator of Administration and Evaluation at the Theoretical and Computational Biophysics Group at the Beckman Institute, University of Illinois. His research interests are the development of shared phenomena in groups and group use of communication technologies. Address: Theoretical and Computational Biophysics Group, University of Illinois, 3121 Beckman Institute, 405 N. Mathews Ave., Urbana, IL 61801; e-mail: brandon@ks.uiuc.edu.

Robert Folger (“Fairness and Transaction Costs: The Contribution of Organizational Justice Theory to an Integrative Model of Economic Organization”) received his Ph.D. in 1975 from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is the Gordon J. Barnett Professor of Business Ethics in the Management Department of the College of Business at the University of Central Florida (and, by courtesy appointment, Professor of Psychology). He has authored over 100 publications on motivation and reactions to work conditions, including topics such as determinants and consequences of ethical decision-making practices, layoffs, trust in the workplace, perceptions of unfair treatment, extraordinary performance, and retribution by employees (e.g., workplace violence). Address: College of Business Administration, University of Central Florida, 4000 Central Florida Blvd., Orlando, FL 32816; e-mail: rfolger@bus.ucf.edu.

Thomas Greckhamer (“Culture and CEO Compensation”) is currently a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of Management at the University of Florida. His research lies at the intersection of organization theory, strategic management, and international management studies. He holds an M.A. in business administration and an M.A. in international business from Johannes Kepler University Linz, Austria. Address: Warrington College of Business Administration, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611-7165; e-mail: thomas.greckhamer@cba.ufl.edu.

Andrea B. Hollingshead (“Transactive Memory Systems in Organizations: Matching Tasks, Expertise, and People”) is Associate Professor of Psychology and Speech Communication at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Her research addresses issues relating to information processing and knowledge management in groups and in organizations. Address: Depts. of Speech Communication and Psychology, University of Illinois, 702 S. Wright St., Urbana, IL 61801; e-mail: hollings@uiuc.edu.

Bryan W. Husted (“Fairness and Transaction Costs: The Contribution of Organizational Justice Theory to an Integrative Model of Economic Organization”) is Professor of Management at the EGADE Business School of the Tecnológico de Monterrey (Mexico) and Alumni Association Chair of Business Ethics at the Instituto de Empresa (Spain). He earned his Ph.D. in business administration at the University of California, Berkeley. Address: Instituto Tecnológico y de Estudios Superiores de Monterrey, Instituto de Empresa, ITESM/EGADE, Ave. Eugenio Garza Sada 2501 Sur, C.P. 64849, Monterrey, N.L., Mexico; e-mail: bhusted@itesm.mx.

Gerry McNamara (“Crisis and Competition in Expert Organizational Decision Making: Credit-Rating Agencies and Their Response to Turbulence in Emerging Economies”) is an associate professor of management at the Anderson Graduate School of Management, University of California, Riverside. He received his Ph.D. from the Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota, and was previously on the faculty at the Broad College of Business, Michigan State University. His primary research interests focus on the interaction of managerial cognition, organizational risk taking, executive compensation, and strategic decision making. Address: Anderson Graduate School of Management, University of California, Riverside, 900 University Ave., Riverside, CA 92521; e-mail: gerry.mcnamara@ucr.edu.

Jack A. Nickerson (“A Knowledge-Based Theory of the Firm—The Problem-Solving Perspective”) received his Ph.D. from the Haas School of Business, University of California, Berkeley. He is Associate Professor of Organization and Strategy at the John M. Olin School of Business, Washington University in St. Louis. Jackson’s research explores the determinants and performance implications of organizational choice. Current interests include knowledge-based theories of firm boundaries, participation and performance implications of teams, and organizational adaptation. Address: John M. Olin School of Business, Washington University, Campus Box 1133, One Brookings Dr., St. Louis, MO 63130-4899; e-mail: nickerson@wustl.edu.

Anat Rafaeli (“Emotion as a Connection of Physical Artifacts and Organizations”) is Professor and Chair of Social Sciences on the Faculty of Industrial Engineering and Management at Technion, Haifa, Israel. Her forthcoming book is entitled Artifacts and Organizations (coedited with Mike Pratt, Lawrence Erlbaum Associates). Anat is currently studying the implications of expressions of anger and guilt in organizations, various dynamics of customer service delivery from employees' perspectives, and the effects of telephone and physical waiting queues on employees and customers. Address: William Davidson Faculty of Industrial Engineering and Management, Technion—Israel Institute of Technology, Technion City, Haifa 32000, Israel; e-mail: anatr@ie.technion.ac.il.

A. Georges L. Romme (“Unanimity Rule and Organizational Decision Making: A Simulation Model”) is Professor of Management at Tilburg University, the Netherlands. He obtained his Ph.D. from Maastricht University. His research focuses on new organizational forms, organization design, organizational learning, and organizational research as a science of design. Romme's publications have appeared in the Strategic Management Journal, Organization Science, Organization Studies, and other journals. He currently serves on the editorial boards of Organization Studies and Organization Science. Address: Department of Organization and Strategy, Faculty of Economics and Business Administration, Tilburg University, P.O. Box 90153, 5000 LE Tilburg, Netherlands; telephone: +31-13-4662315; e-mail: a.g.l.romme@uvt.nl.

Henry L. Tosi (“Culture and CEO Compensation”) is the McGriff Professor of Management at the University of Florida. He received his Ph.D. from the Ohio State University (1964). He is also Visiting Professor of Management at both SDA-Bocconi, Milan, and HEC. He has extensive international experience, having held appointments at LUISS (Rome), the University of Catania (Sicily), and the University of Modena (Modena, Italy). His research focuses on corporate governance and CEO compensation and has been published in the Academy of Management Journal and Administrative Science Quarterly. Address: Warrington College of Business Administration, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611-7165; e-mail: henry.tosi@cba.ufl.edu.

Paul M. Vaaler (“Crisis and Competition in Expert Organizational Decision Making: Credit-Rating Agencies and Their Response to Turbulence in Emerging Economies”) is an associate professor of international business at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University. He received his Ph.D. from the Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota. His research interests focus on risk and investment in turbulent markets, including sovereign risk assessment, political business cycles and privatization in emerging-market countries, and business performance patterns in unstable industry environments. Address: Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Tufts University, Medford, MA 02155; e-mail: paul.vaaler@tufts.edu.

Iris Vilnai-Yavetz (“Emotion as a Connection of Physical Artifacts and Organizations”) received her Ph.D. from Technion in Haifa, Israel, and her MBA from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. Before her graduate studies, Iris worked as a marketing consultant and is now an adjunct lecturer at the Technion Graduate School of Business and at the Haifa University Graduate School of Business. Iris's current studies examine the impact of physical environments on customers, service providers, and their interactions, as well as various aspects of the design of e-services. Address: William Davidson Faculty of Industrial Engineering and Management, Technion—Israel Institute of Technology, Technion City, Haifa 32000, Israel; e-mail: yavetzir@tx.technion.ac.il.

Sze-Sze Wong (“Distal and Local Group Learning: Performance Trade-offs and Tensions”) is an assistant professor at Nanyang Technological University, Singapore. She received her Ph.D. in management from the Fuqua School of Business at Duke University. Her current research interests center on how learning processes and learning networks of groups impact collective knowledge and group performance and how interunit relationships in the firm affect knowledge sharing and unit performance. Address: Nanyang Business School, S3-B2B-47, Nanyang Technological University, Nanyang Ave., Singapore 639798; e-mail: aszewong@ntu.edu.sg.

Todd R. Zenger (“A Knowledge-Based Theory of the Firm—The Problem-Solving Perspective”) is the Robert and Barbara Frick Professor of Business Strategy at Washington University in St. Louis. He completed his Ph.D. at UCLA. His research focuses on the theory of the firm, corporate strategy, and compensation. His research has appeared in the Strategic Management Journal, Administrative Science Quarterly, Academy of Management Journal, Academy of Management Review, Organization Science, and Management Science. He currently serves as an associate editor for Management Science and on the editorial boards of the Academy of Management Review, Organization Science, and Strategic Organization. Address: John M. Olin School of Business, Washington University, Campus Box 1133, One Brookings Dr., St. Louis, MO 63130-4899; e-mail: zenger@wustl.edu.