

Organization Science

Publication details, including instructions for authors and subscription information:
<http://pubsonline.informs.org>

About Authors

To cite this article:

(2007) About Authors. Organization Science 18(6):1022-1023. <https://doi.org/10.1287/orsc.1070.0327>

Full terms and conditions of use: <https://pubsonline.informs.org/Publications/Librarians-Portal/PubsOnLine-Terms-and-Conditions>

This article may be used only for the purposes of research, teaching, and/or private study. Commercial use or systematic downloading (by robots or other automatic processes) is prohibited without explicit Publisher approval, unless otherwise noted. For more information, contact permissions@informs.org.

The Publisher does not warrant or guarantee the article's accuracy, completeness, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or non-infringement. Descriptions of, or references to, products or publications, or inclusion of an advertisement in this article, neither constitutes nor implies a guarantee, endorsement, or support of claims made of that product, publication, or service.

Copyright © 2007, INFORMS

Please scroll down for article—it is on subsequent pages

With 12,500 members from nearly 90 countries, INFORMS is the largest international association of operations research (O.R.) and analytics professionals and students. INFORMS provides unique networking and learning opportunities for individual professionals, and organizations of all types and sizes, to better understand and use O.R. and analytics tools and methods to transform strategic visions and achieve better outcomes.

For more information on INFORMS, its publications, membership, or meetings visit <http://www.informs.org>

About Authors

Geoffrey G. Bell (“Geography, Networks, and Knowledge Flow”) is Associate Professor of Management at the Labovitz School of Business and Economics of the University of Minnesota Duluth. He received his Ph.D. in strategic management from the Carlson School of Management at the University of Minnesota Twin Cities. His research focuses on the intersection of industry clusters, networks, trust, and organizational learning. His work has appeared in Strategic Management Journal, Academy of Management Review, and The Journal of Business Ethics. Address: Labovitz School of Business and Economics, University of Minnesota Duluth, 110 SBE, 412 Library Drive, Duluth, MN 55812; e-mail: ggbell@ d.umn.edu.

Lee Fleming (“Small Worlds and Regional Innovation”) is an associate professor at the Harvard Business School. He studies technology, science, and collaboration influence invention and breakthroughs. He holds a B.S.E.E. from the University of California at Davis and received graduate degrees in statistics, management, and engineering from Stanford University. Prior to an academic career, he was an inventor for Hewlett Packard in Silicon Valley, California, and in Fort Collins, Colorado. Address: Morgan Hall 485, Harvard Business School, Boston, MA 02163; e-mail: lfleming@hbs.edu.

Anil K. Gupta (“Innovation At and Across Multiple Levels of Analysis”) is the Ralph J. Tyser Professor of Strategy and Organization at the Robert H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park. He earned his doctorate from Harvard University. His current research focuses on global strategy and organization, knowledge creation and diffusion, and innovation and entrepreneurship. Address: Robert H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742; e-mail: agupta@rhsmith.umd.edu.

Andrew M. Hess (“Building Dynamic Capabilities: Innovation Driven by Individual, Firm, and Network Level Effects”) is a fourth-year doctoral student in strategy at the Georgia Institute of Technology. He holds an M.B.A. from Texas A&M University and a Bachelor’s degree in economics from Washington Lee University. Prior to entering academia, he worked for Silicon Valley Bank as a commercial banker focused on start-up technology firms. His research interests include the intersection of strategy and entrepreneurship. His dissertation deals with the role of individuals in building firm-level dynamic capabilities. Address: College of Management, Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta, GA 30308-1149; e-mail: drew.hess@mgt.gatech.edu.

Adam I. Juda (“Small Worlds and Regional Innovation”) is a Ph.D. candidate of the information, technology and management graduate program jointly offered by Harvard Business School and Harvard University’s Division of Engineering and Applied Sciences. He studies eCommerce, mechanism design, and networks. Address: Google, Inc., 76 Ninth Avenue, 4th Floor, New York, NY 10011; e-mail: juda@google.com.

Charles King III (“Small Worlds and Regional Innovation”) is President of Pleiades Consulting Group, Inc. and Special Consultant to Greylock McKinnon Associates. He received his Ph.D. in economics from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and his J.D. from the Yale Law School, and was an assistant professor at the Harvard Business School before returning to private industry. His current research interests focus on economics and marketing in the pharmaceutical industry and the marketing of alcoholic beverages to teenagers. Address: Pleiades Consulting Group, Inc., P.O. Box 711, Lincoln, MA 01773; e-mail: cking@gma-us.com.

Jean McGuire (“Corporate Governance Reform as Institutional Innovation: The Case of Japan”) is Professor of Management and the William W. Rucks IV Endowed Chair at the E. J. Ourso College of Business, Louisiana State University. She received her Ph.D. from Cornell University. Her research interests include corporate governance and executive compensation. Address: E. J. Ourso College of Business, Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, LA 70803; e-mail: mcguire@lsu.edu.

Fiona Murray (“Perspective—Exploring the Foundations of Cumulative Innovation: Implications for Organization Science”) received her Ph.D. from the Division of Applied Sciences, Harvard University. She is currently an associate professor of technology, innovation, and entrepreneurship at the Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Her research examines how institutions shape cumulative innovation, the role of intellectual property law in the innovation process, and the organization of science-based innovation in public and private sectors. Address: Sloan School of Management, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 50 Memorial Drive E52-567, Cambridge, MA 02142; e-mail: fmurray@mit.edu.

Siobhán O’Mahony (“Perspective—Exploring the Foundations of Cumulative Innovation: Implications for Organization Science”) received her Ph.D. in management science and engineering from Stanford University. She is currently an assistant professor at the Graduate School of Management, University of California at Davis. Her research examines distributed cumulative innovation and community or network forms of organization. Address: Graduate School of Management, University of California at Davis, Room 130 AOB IV, One Shields Avenue, Davis, CA 95616-8609; e-mail: somahony@ucdavis.edu.

Frank T. Rothaermel (“Building Dynamic Capabilities: Innovation Driven by Individual, Firm, and Network Level Effects”) is a Sloan Industry Studies Fellow and Associate Professor of Strategy at the Georgia Institute of Technology. He holds a Ph.D. from the University of Washington and serves on the editorial boards of the Academy of Management Journal and the Academy of Management Review. His research interests include the intersection of strategy, technology innovation management, and entrepreneurship. He has received several recognitions for his research, including the Academy of Management Newman Award, the National Science Foundation CAREER Award, and the Strategic Management Society

Conference Best Paper Prize. Address: College of Management, Georgia Institute of Technology, Atlanta, GA 30308-1149; e-mail: frank.rothaermel@mgt.gatech.edu.

Deepak Somaya (“Combining Patent Law Expertise with R&D for Patenting Performance”) is an assistant professor at the Robert H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park. He received his Ph.D. from the Walter A. Haas School of Business of the University of California at Berkeley. His research interests span various aspects of knowledge-intensive industries, especially in relation to firm strategies for protecting their competitive advantage. Address: Robert H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742-1815; e-mail: dsomaya@rhsmith.umd.edu.

M. Susan Taylor (“Innovation At and Across Multiple Levels of Analysis”) is Dean’s Professor of Human Resources at the R.H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park. She received her Ph.D. in industrial and organizational psychology from Purdue University and currently serves as a Senior Editor of the Organization Science. Her current research includes examining the cross-cultural paradoxes of the innovation process, the role or leadership at multilevels of the organization in effectively implementing radical organizational change, and the role of the task complexity as a moderator of the multitasking—performance relationship. Address: Robert H. Smith School of Business, The University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742; e-mail: staylor@rhsmith.umd.edu.

Paul E. Tesluk (“Innovation At and Across Multiple Levels of Analysis”) is an associate professor at the Robert H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park. He received his Ph.D. in industrial and organizational psychology from Penn State University. His research focuses on team effectiveness, management and leadership development, and innovation processes in organizations. Address: Robert H. Smith School of Business, University of Maryland, College Park, MD 20742; e-mail: ptesluk@rhsmith.umd.edu.

F. Ted Tschang (“Balancing the Tensions Between Rationalization and Creativity in the Video Games Industry”) is Assistant Professor of Management at the Lee Kong Chian School of Business, Singapore Management University. He received his Ph.D. in public policy and management from Carnegie Mellon University. His research focuses on the intersection of creativity, product development, and industry structure in the creative industries, and on industrial development and technology policy in the developing countries. Address: Lee Kong Chian School of Business, Singapore Management University, Singapore 178899, Republic of Singapore; e-mail: tedt@smu.edu.sg.

Lai Si Tsui-Auch (“Corporate Governance Reform as Institutional Innovation: The Case of Japan”) is Associate Professor of Organizational Studies at the Nanyang Business School, Nanyang Technological University. She received her Ph.D. from Michigan State University. Her research focuses on institutional theory and state-capital relations. Address: Nanyang Business School, Nanyang Technological University, Singapore 639798; e-mail: alstsui@ntu.edu.sg.

Ian O. Williamson (“Combining Patent Law Expertise with R&D for Patenting Performance”) is Associate Professor of Management at the Melbourne Business School, Melbourne, Australia, and is also a Research Fellow of the Intellectual Property Research Institute of Australia (IPRIA). He received his Ph.D. from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. His research examines how firms hire and manage knowledge workers, such as top executives, IT workers, scientists, and lawyers. He also examines how firms can effectively recruit and retain diverse workforces. Address: Melbourne Business School, 200 Leicester Street, Carlton, VIC 3053 Australia; e-mail: i.williamson@mbs.edu.

Toru Yoshikawa (“Corporate Governance Reform as Institutional Innovation: The Case of Japan”) is Associate Professor of Strategy at the DeGroote School of Business, McMaster University. He received his Ph.D. from York University. His main research focuses on the relations between corporate governance, firm performance, and strategy. Address: DeGroote School of Business, McMaster University, 1280 Main Street West, Hamilton, ON L8S 4M4 Canada; e-mail: yoshikat@mcmaster.ca.

Akbar Zaheer (“Geography, Networks, and Knowledge Flow”) is Curtis L. Carlson Chair in Strategic Management at the Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota. He received his Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Besides networks, his research interests include trust in the organizational context, strategic alliances, mergers and acquisitions, and firms’ responses to uncertainty. His work has appeared in Strategic Management Journal, Academy of Management Review, Management Science, and Academy of Management Journal. Address: Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota, 3-365 CarlSMgmt, 321 19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455; e-mail: azaheer@csm.umn.edu.

Xiaomeng Zhang (“Combining Patent Law Expertise with R&D for Patenting Performance”) is an assistant professor at the Kogod School of Business, American University. She received her Ph.D. in organizational behavior and human resource management from the University of Maryland, College Park. Her research interests focus on creativity and innovation, leadership, CEO compensation, and motivation. Address: Kogod School of Business, 4400 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, D.C. 20016-8044; e-mail: xmzhang@american.edu.