

Organization Science

Publication details, including instructions for authors and subscription information:
<http://pubsonline.informs.org>

About Authors

To cite this article:

(2009) About Authors. Organization Science 20(6):1072-1074. <https://doi.org/10.1287/orsc.1090.0495>

Full terms and conditions of use: <https://pubsonline.informs.org/Publications/Librarians-Portal/PubsOnLine-Terms-and-Conditions>

This article may be used only for the purposes of research, teaching, and/or private study. Commercial use or systematic downloading (by robots or other automatic processes) is prohibited without explicit Publisher approval, unless otherwise noted. For more information, contact permissions@informs.org.

The Publisher does not warrant or guarantee the article's accuracy, completeness, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or non-infringement. Descriptions of, or references to, products or publications, or inclusion of an advertisement in this article, neither constitutes nor implies a guarantee, endorsement, or support of claims made of that product, publication, or service.

Copyright © 2009, INFORMS

Please scroll down for article—it is on subsequent pages

With 12,500 members from nearly 90 countries, INFORMS is the largest international association of operations research (O.R.) and analytics professionals and students. INFORMS provides unique networking and learning opportunities for individual professionals, and organizations of all types and sizes, to better understand and use O.R. and analytics tools and methods to transform strategic visions and achieve better outcomes. For more information on INFORMS, its publications, membership, or meetings visit <http://www.informs.org>

About Authors

Pierpaolo Andriani (“From Gaussian to Paretian Thinking: Causes and Implications of Power Laws in Organizations”) is a Senior Lecturer in Innovation Management at Durham Business School, United Kingdom, and Associate Professor at the eBusiness Management School, ISUFI, University of Salento. He received his Ph.D. from Durham University, United Kingdom. His research interests are focused on the impact of complexity theory on organizational theory, industrial clusters, and innovation. Address: Durham Business School, Durham University, Mill Hill Lane, Durham DH1 3LB, United Kingdom; e-mail: pierpaolo.andriani@durham.ac.uk.

Angelo Fanelli (“In Charisma We Trust: The Effects of CEO Charismatic Visions on Securities Analysts”) specializes in organizational behavior. He received a Ph.D. from both the Universities of Bologna and Florida. His research interests focus on the dynamics of leadership and CEO charisma, the analysis of text, multi-level modeling, and organizational knowledge. Address: Department of Management and Human Resources, HEC School of Management, 1 Rue de la Liberation, 78351 Jouy-en-Josas CEDEX, France. e-mail: fanelli@hec.fr.

Jonathan Jaffee (“A Good Riddance? Spin-offs and the Technological Performance of Parent Firms”) is an attorney in Los Angeles, California. He received his Ph.D. in organizational behavior and industrial relations from the University of California, Berkeley. His research interests include organizational ecology and the competitive dynamics of law firms and their lawyers. Address: 3670 Trousdale Parkway, Bridge Hall 306, Los Angeles, CA 90089; e-mail: jjaffee67@gmail.com.

Ji-Yub (Jay) Kim (“Organizational Learning from Extreme Performance Experience: The Impact of Success and Recovery Experience”) is an assistant professor of management and organization in the Marshall School of Business at the University of Southern California. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His current research focuses organizational learning, mergers and acquisitions, interorganizational collaboration, technology management, and entrepreneurship. Address: Marshall School of Business, University of Southern California, 3670 Trousdale Parkway, Los Angeles, CA 90089-0808; e-mail: jaykim@marshall.usc.edu.

June-Young Kim (“Organizational Learning from Extreme Performance Experience: The Impact of Success and Recovery Experience”) is an assistant professor of management at Marquette University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. His research interests include organizational learning, analogy, and institutional entrepreneurship. Address: College of Business Administration, Marquette University, Straz Hall, 226, Milwaukee, WI 53201-1881; e-mail: juneyoung.kim@marquette.edu.

Joseph T. Mahoney (“The Interdependence of Private and Public Interests”) joined the College of Business of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign in 1988 and is the Investors in Business Education Professor of Strategy. He earned his Ph.D. in Business Economics from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. His research interest is organizational economics. He serves as an associate editor of Strategic Management Journal. Address: College of Business, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 1206 South Sixth Street, Champaign, IL 61820; e-mail: josephm@illinois.edu.

Anita M. McGahan (“The Interdependence of Private and Public Interests”) is Professor and Rotman Chair in Management at the Rotman School of Management at the University of Toronto, Visiting Professor of Social Medicine at the Harvard Medical School, a Senior Associate at the Institute for Strategy and Competitiveness at Harvard University, the Senior Economist at the Massachusetts General Hospital Division for Global Health and Human Rights, and a Fellow at the AIC Institute for Corporate Citizenship. She is interested in industry evolution and particularly in the emergence of new industries. Address: AIC Institute for Corporate Citizenship, Rotman School of Management, University of Toronto, 105 St. George Street, Toronto, ON M5S 3E6, Canada; e-mail: amcgahan@rotman.utoronto.ca.

Bill McKelvey (“From Gaussian to Paretian Thinking: Causes and Implications of Power Laws in Organizations”) is professor of Strategic Organizing and Complexity Science at the UCLA Anderson School of Management. He received a Ph.D. from MIT. His research focuses on evolution and change, philosophy of science, organization science, complexity science, agent-based computational modeling, complexity leadership, and “smart parts” logistics. He has published over 70 papers relating complexity science to management. He is author of Organizational Systematics, coeditor of the SAGE Handbook of Complexity and Management

(2010), and editor of the Routledge Major Work: Complexity. Address: UCLA Anderson School of Management, 110 Westwood Plaza, Los Angeles, CA 90095-1481; e-mail: mckelvey@anderson.ucla.edu.

David G. McKendrick (“A Good Riddance? Spin-offs and the Technological Performance of Parent Firms”) is professor at Durham University’s Business School. His research focuses on industrial and organizational evolution, international competition, and the emergence of organizational forms. He received his Ph.D. in business from the University of California, Berkeley. Address: Durham Business School, Durham University, Durham, DH1 3LB, United Kingdom; e-mail: dave.mckendrick@durham.ac.uk

Anne S. Miner (“Organizational Learning from Extreme Performance Experience: The Impact of Success and Recovery Experience”) is the Ford Motor Company Distinguished Professor of Management and Human Resources and Executive Director of the Initiative for Studies in Transformational Entrepreneurship at the University of Wisconsin-Madison. She received her Ph.D. in Business from Stanford University. Her research focuses on organizational learning and entrepreneurship, including learning from other organizations, learning from failure, improvisation, patterns in university spin-off progeny, and population level learning. Address: School of Business, University of Wisconsin-Madison, 5274 Grainger Hall, 975 University Avenue, Madison, WI 53706; e-mail: aminer@bus.wisc.edu.

Vilmos F. Misangyi (“In Charisma We Trust: The Effects of CEO Charismatic Visions on Securities Analysts”) is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Management and Organizations in the Smeal College of Business at Pennsylvania State University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Florida. His research interests include CEO charisma, institutional entrepreneurship, corruption, and managerial discretion. Address: Department of Management and Organization, Smeal College of Business, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802; e-mail: vfm10@psu.edu.

Christos N. Pitelis (“The Interdependence of Private and Public Interests”) is the Director of the Centre for International Business and Management at the Judge Business School and Fellow in Economics at Queens’ College, University of Cambridge. He received his doctorate in Economics from Warwick University. His research interests are in the areas of the theory of the firm, (international) business strategy, industrial organization and policy, and the sustainable advantage of firms and nations. Address: Centre for International Business and Management at the Judge Business School, University of Cambridge, Trumpington Street, Cambridge CB2 1AG, United Kingdom; e-mail: c.pitelis@jbs.cam.ac.uk.

Nils Plambeck (“CEO Ambivalence and Responses to Strategic Issues”) is an Assistant Professor of Strategic Management at the HEC Paris. He earned his doctorate in business administration from the University of Hamburg, Germany. His research interests include managerial and organizational cognition, decision making, and organizational learning. Address: HEC Paris, 1 Rue de la Libération, 78351 Jouy en Josas CEDEX, France; e-mail: plambeck@hec.fr

Henry L. Tosi (“In Charisma We Trust: The Effects of CEO Charismatic Visions on Securities Analysts”) is currently the McGriff Professor of Management Emeritus at the University of Florida. He received his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. He has served on the editorial review boards of Administrative Science Quarterly, Journal of Business Research, and The Academy of Management Review. He is a founding coeditor of The Leadership Quarterly. His work on Management by Objectives was among the first serious research studies on the role of goals and goal setting in organizations. His most recent work has been on CEO compensation issues and organizational control. Address: Warrington College of Business Administration, University of Florida, Gainesville, FL 32611-7165; e-mail: henry.tosi@notes.cba.ufl.edu.

Haridimos Tsoukas (“A Dialogical Approach to the Creation of New Knowledge in Organizations”) is the George D. Mavros Research Professor of Organization Theory at the Athens Laboratory of Business Administration, Greece and a professor of Organization Studies at Warwick Business School, University of Warwick, United Kingdom. He obtained his Ph.D. at the Manchester Business. His research interests include knowledge-based perspectives on organizations, the management of organizational change and social reforms, the epistemology of practice, and epistemological issues in organization theory. He has published widely in several leading academic journals. He was the editor-in-chief of Organization Studies and has served on the editorial board of several journals. He is a coeditor of The Oxford Handbook of Organization Theory. He has also coedited Organizations as Knowledge Systems and Managing the Future: Foresight in the Knowledge Economy. He is the author of Complex Knowledge: Studies in Organizational Epistemology and of If Aristotle Were a CEO. Address: ALBA, 2A Athinas Avenue & Areos Street, 16671 Vouliagmeni, Athens, Greece; e-mail: htsoukas@alba.edu.gr; hari.tsoukas@wbs.ac.uk.

James B. Wade (“A Good Riddance? Spin-offs and the Technological Performance of Parent Firms”) is a professor at the McDonough School of Business, Georgetown University. He received his Ph.D. in organizational behavior and industrial relations from the University of California, Berkeley. His research interests include organizational ecology, social movements, and top management team issues. Address: McDonough School of Business, Georgetown University, Washington, DC 20057; e-mail: jbw42@georgetown.edu.

Klaus Weber (“CEO Ambivalence and Responses to Strategic Issues”) is an Assistant Professor of Management and Organization at the Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University. He received his Ph.D.

in Management and Organizations from the University of Michigan. His research uses cultural, institutional, and sensemaking approaches to understand globalization, organizational issue agendas, and the intersection between the environmental movement and the economy. Address: Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University, 2001 Sheridan Road, Evanston, IL 60208-2001; e-mail: klausweber@northwestern.edu.