
Organization Science

About Authors

To cite this article:
(2010) About Authors. Organization Science 21(1):306-309. https://doi.org/10.1287/orsc.1090.0510

Organization Science
Vol. 21, No. 1, January–February 2010, pp. 306–309
ISSN 1047-7039 | EISSN 1526-5455 | 10 | 2101 | 0306
DOI 10.1287/orsc.1090.0510

About Authors

Mary J. Benner ("Securities Analysts and Incumbent Response to Radical Technological Change: Evidence from Digital Photography and Internet Telephony") is an assistant professor of Management at The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. She received her Ph.D. from Columbia University. Her current research focuses on how institutional pressures influence firms' responses to technological change. She serves on the editorial boards of Organization Science, Administrative Science Quarterly, and the Academy of Management Review. Address: Management Department, The Wharton School, 2000 Steinberg Hall-Dietrich Hall, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6370; e-mail: benner@wharton.upenn.edu.

Henrik Bresman ("External Learning Activities and Team Performance: A Multimethod Field Study") is an assistant professor of organizational behavior at INSEAD. He received his Ph.D. from the Sloan School of Management at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His research interests include teams, innovation, and leadership. Address: INSEAD, Boulevard de Constance, 77305 Fontainebleau CEDEX, France; e-mail: henrik.bresman@insead.edu.

James R. Detert ("Speaking Up to Higher-Ups: How Supervisors and Skip-Level Leaders Influence Employee Voice") is an assistant professor of management at the Johnson Graduate School of Management at Cornell University. He received his Ph.D. in organizational behavior from Harvard University. His current research interests involve the antecedents and outcomes of upward, improvement-oriented voice; the effects that leaders have on voice, ethical decision making, and other important subordinate behaviors; and cognitive moral disengagement as a predictor of unethical behavior. Address: Johnson Graduate School of Management, Cornell University, Ithaca, NY 14853; e-mail: jrd239@cornell.edu.

Gary Dushnitsky ("Entrepreneurial Optimism in the Market for Technological Inventions") is an assistant professor at the Wharton School and a recipient of the Kauffman Foundation's Junior Faculty Fellowship. He earned his doctorate from the Stern School, New York University. His research interests are entrepreneurship, financing of technological innovation, and corporate venture capital. Address: The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, PA; e-mail: gdushnit@wharton.upenn.edu.

Teppo Felin ("Perspective–Finding the Organization in Organizational Theory: A Meta-Theory of the Organization as a Social Actor") is an assistant professor at the Marriott School of Management, Brigham Young University. He received his Ph.D. in organization theory and strategy from the David Eccles School of Business, University of Utah. His research interests include the microfoundations of strategy and organization theory, the micro-macro links of organizational learning and capabilities, social theory, and the philosophy of social science. He serves on several journal editorial boards, including the Academy of Management Review. Address: Marriott School, Brigham Young University, 587 Tanner Building, Provo, UT 84602; e-mail: teppo.felin@byu.edu.

Thomas S. Gruca ("The Effects of Competition on Referral Alliances of Professional Service Firms") is a Henry B. Tippie Research Professor of Marketing at the University of Iowa. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. His current research interests include marketing strategy, health care, prediction markets, and the interface of finance and marketing. Address: S356 Pappajohn Business Bldg., Tippie College of Business, University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA, 52242-1994; e-mail: thomas-gruca@uiowa.edu.

Mukti Khaire ("Young and No Money? Never Mind: The Material Impact of Social Resources on New Venture Growth") is an assistant professor in the Entrepreneurial Management Unit at the Harvard Business School. She received her Ph.D. from Columbia Business School. Her research interests are at the intersection of entrepreneurship, institutional theory, and creative industries. Address: Rock 213, Harvard Business School, Boston MA 02163; e-mail: mkhaire@hbs.edu.

Brayden G. King ("Perspective–Finding the Organization in Organizational Theory: A Meta-Theory of the Organization as a Social Actor") is an assistant professor at the Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University. He received his Ph.D. in sociology at the University of Arizona. His recent research looks at the interaction of social movements and corporate actors and its effect on organizational policymaking. Address: Kellogg School of Management, Northwestern University, 2001 Sheridan Road, Evanston, IL 60208; e-mail: b-king@kellogg.northwestern.edu.

M.V. Shyam Kumar ("Differential Gains Between Partners in Joint Ventures: Role of Resource Appropriation and Private Benefits") is an assistant professor of management and organization at the Lally

School of Management and Technology, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. He received his Ph.D. in strategy from the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign. His research focuses on the performance of joint ventures and acquisitions and theories of the firm. Address: Pittsburgh Building, 110 8th Street, Troy, NY 12180; e-mail: kumarm2@rpi.edu.

Erik R. Larsen ("Getting There: Exploring the Role of Expectations and Preproduction Delay in Processes of Organizational Founding") is a professor of Management at the University of Lugano. He received his Ph.D. from Copenhagen Business School. His current research focuses on organizational theory, deregulation, and queuing. Address: University of Lugano, Via Buffi 13, CH-6900 Lugano, Switzerland; e-mail: erik.larsen@lu.unisi.ch.

Shu-Jou Lin ("Different Truths in Different Worlds") is assistant professor of Business Administration at Chang Gung University. She received her Ph.D. in international business from National Taiwan University. Her research interests include corporate entrepreneurship and organizational learning. Address: Dept. of Business Administration, Chang Gung University, Kwei-Shan, Tao-Yuan, Taiwan 33302; e-mail: lin.sj@mail.cgu.edu.tw.

Alessandro Lomi ("Getting There: Exploring the Role of Expectations and Preproduction Delays in Processes of Organizational Founding") is a professor of organization theory at the University of Lugano. He received his Ph.D. from Cornell University. His current research interests include ecological theories of organizations, system models for corporate demography, and the analysis of social networks between and within organizations. Address: University of Lugano, Via Buffi 13, CH-6900 Lugano, Switzerland; e-mail: alessandro.lomi@lu.unisi.ch.

Gerry McNamara ("Are Technology-Intensive Industries More Dynamically Competitive? No and Yes") is an associate professor of management at Broad School of Management at the Michigan State University. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota. His research focuses on examining the effects of behavioral factors, organizational practices, and strategic positioning on organizational decision-making and risk taking. His research also examines the consequences of socially constructed market boundaries on firm positioning and performance. He serves on the editorial boards of the Academy of Management Review, Organization Science, and Strategic Management Journal. Address: Department of Management, Broad School of Management, Michigan State University, N475 North Business Complex, East Lansing, MI 48824; e-mail: mcnamara@bus.msu.edu.

Kent D. Miller ("Different Truths in Different Worlds") is a professor of management at the Eli Broad Graduate School of Management of Michigan State University, where he teaches strategic management. He received his Ph.D. from the Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota. He is currently studying organizational learning, routines, simulation methods, and philosophical topics pertaining to organizations and management research. Address: The Eli Broad Graduate School of Management, Michigan State University, East Lansing, MI 48824-1122; e-mail: millerk@bus.msu.edu.

Philippe Monin ("A Recursive Perspective on Discursive Legitimation and Organizational Action in Mergers and Acquisitions") is professor of Management at Ecole de Management de Lyon, France. Along with his long-standing interest for postmerger integration processes, he currently investigates the roles of identities, categories, and institutions in the making of cultural markets. Address: EM LYON, 23 avenue Guy de Collongue, P.O. Box 174, 69132 Ecully CEDEX, France; e-mail: monin@em-lyon.com.

Mark Mortensen ("Go (Con)figure: Subgroups, Imbalance, and Isolates in Geographically Dispersed Teams") is the Richard S. Leghorn (1939) career development professor in Management of Technological Innovation and Assistant Professor of Organizational Studies at the MIT Sloan School of Management. He received his Ph.D. in Management Science and Engineering at Stanford University. His research focuses on the changing nature of teams, with a particular focus on the effects of geographic dispersion teams and project-based work on intragroup dynamics. He serves on the editorial board of Organization Science. Address: MIT Sloan School of Management, 50 Memorial Drive, E52-553, Cambridge, MA 02142-1347; e-mail: markm@mit.edu.

Inwoo Nam ("The Effects of Competition on Referral Alliances of Professional Service Firms") is assistant professor of Business Administration at Choong-Ang University in South Korea. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Iowa. His research focuses on competitive marketing strategy and modeling firm behavior in spatial context. Address: College of Business, Choong-Ang University, 221 Heuksuk-Dong, Dongjak-Gu, Seoul, South Korea, 156-756; e-mail: inam@cau.ac.kr.

Michael Boyer O'Leary ("Go (Con)figure: Subgroups, Imbalance, and Isolates in Geographically Dispersed Teams") is an assistant professor of organization studies at the Carroll School of Management at Boston College. He received his Ph.D. in Management from the MIT Sloan School of Management. His research focuses on teams (especially geographically-dispersed ones) and the social and behavioral aspects of information technology use. He is coauthor of "Distributed Work over the Centuries: Trust and Control in the Hudson's Bay Company, 1670-1826" (2002). Address: 140 Commonwealth Avenue, Fulton Hall, Room 434, Chestnut Hill, MA 02467-3808; e-mail: michael.oleary@sloan.mit.edu.

Srikanth Paruchuri ("Intraorganizational Networks, Interorganizational Networks, and the Impact of Central Inventors: A Longitudinal Study of Pharmaceutical Firms") is an assistant professor at the Hough Graduate School of Business and Warrington College of Business Administration at University of Florida. He received his Ph.D. from Columbia University Graduate School of Business. His work explores technology networks within and across firms, and phenomenon of creative destruction. Address: Warrington College of Business Administration, University of Florida, Gainsville, FL 32611; e-mail: srikanth.paruchuri@cba.ufl.edu.

Phanish Puranam ("Repeated Interactions and Contractual Detail: Identifying the Learning Effect") is an associate professor of strategic and international management at London Business School. He received a Ph.D. in management from the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania. His research interests include interorganizational coordination between firms as well as within firms. Address: London Business School, Regent's Park, London NW1 4SA, United Kingdom; e-mail: ppuranam@london.edu.

Jeffrey J. Reuer ("Discovering Valuable Growth Opportunities: An Analysis of Equity Alliances with IPO Firms") holds the Blake Family Endowed Chair in Strategic Management and Governance at the Krannert School of Management at Purdue University. His current research uses information economics and real options theory to investigate corporate investments such as alliances and acquisitions. Address: Krannert School of Management, Purdue University, 403 West State Street, West Lafayette, IN 47907-2056; e-mail: jreuer@purdue.edu.

Alva Taylor ("The Next Generation: Technology Adoption and Integration Through Internal Competition") is an associate professor at the Tuck School of Business at Dartmouth College. He received his Ph.D. from the Graduate School of Business at Stanford University. His research addresses innovation, technological change, creativity, and strategic change. He is on the editorial board of the Strategic Management Journal. Address: Tuck Graduate School of Business, 100 Tuck Hall, Hanover, NH 03755; e-mail: alva.taylor@dartmouth.edu.

Tony W. Tong ("Discovering Valuable Growth Opportunities: An Analysis of Equity Alliances with IPO Firms") is assistant professor of Strategic Management at the Leeds School of Business at the University of Colorado. He received his Ph.D. from Ohio State University. His current research applies real options theory to study firms' corporate development activities and growth initiatives. Address: Leeds School of Business, University of Colorado, UCB 419, Boulder, CO 80309-0419; e-mail: tony.tong@colorado.edu.

Roger Tracy ("The Effects of Competition on Referral Alliances of Professional Service Firms") is an assistant dean for Statewide Clinical Education Programs at the Carver College of Medicine, University of Iowa. He received his Masters Degree from the University of Iowa. His research has been concentrated in professional workforce tracking and analysis, including the role of clinical outreach clinics as an element of service regionalization. Address: Deans Office, Carver College of Medicine, University of Iowa, Iowa City, IA 52242; e-mail: roger-tracy@uiowa.edu.

Linda K. Treviño ("Speaking Up to Higher-Ups: How Supervisors and Skip-Level Leaders Influence Employee Voice") is distinguished professor of organizational behavior and ethics in the Smeal College of Business at Pennsylvania State University. She received her Ph.D. in Management from Texas A& M University. Her current research interests focus on ethical decision making and conduct in organizational contexts including work on ethical codes and culture, ethical leadership, values-based leadership, moral awareness and disengagement processes, and "speaking up" in organizations. Address: Smeal College of Business, Pennsylvania State University, University Park, PA 16802; e-mail: ltrevino@psu.edu.

Paul M. Vaaler ("Are Technology-Intensive Industries More Dynamically Competitive? No and Yes") is an associate professor of international business at the Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota, where he also received his Ph.D. He studies risk and investment behavior in turbulent industries with special focus on risk and investment behavior by firms active in emerging-market countries. He serves on the editorial boards of the Academy of Management Journal, International Journal of Strategic Change Management, and Journal of International Business Studies. Address: Department of Strategic Management & Organization, Carlson School of Management, University of Minnesota, 3-424 CarlSMgmt, 321 19th Avenue South, Minneapolis, MN 55455; e-mail: vaal0001@umn.edu.

Eero Vaara ("A Recursive Perspective on Discursive Legitimation and Organizational Action in Mergers and Acquisitions") is a professor of Management and Organization at Swedish School of Economics and Business Administration in Helsinki, Finland and permanent visiting professor at Ecole de Management de Lyon, France. His research interests focus on organizational change (especially mergers and acquisitions), strategy and strategizing, multinational corporations and globalization, and the role of the media in organizing and management. He has focused lately on narrative and discursive perspectives. Address: Swedish School of Economics and Business Administration, P.O. Box 479, 00101 Helsinki, Finland; e-mail: erro.vaara@hanken.fi.

Bart S. Vanneste ("Repeated Interactions and Contractual Detail: Identifying the Learning Effect") is a Ph.D. candidate in strategic and international management at London Business School. His research focuses on the governance and social structure of exchange relationships. Address: London Business School, Regent's Park, London NW1 4SA, United Kingdom; e-mail: bvanneste.phd2004@london.edu.

Filippo Carlo Wezel ("Getting There: Exploring the Role of Expectations and Preproduction Delay in Processes of Organizational Founding") is a professor of organization theory in the Faculty of Economics at the University of Lugano. His research focuses on organizational diversity, interfirm mobility, and industry emergence. His work has been published in numerous journals. Address: Faculty of Economics, University of Italian Switzerland, Via Giuseppe Buffi 13, CH-6904 Lugano, Switzerland; e-mail: wezelf@lu.unisi.ch.

David A. Whetten ("Perspective–Finding the Organization in Organizational Theory: A Meta-Theory of the Organization as a Social Actor") is the Jack Wheatley Professor of Organizational Studies and Director of the Faculty Development Center at Brigham Young University. He received his PhD from Cornell. His recent scholarship has focused on organizational identity and identification, theory development, and management education. He served as editor of the Foundations for Organizational Science, an academic book series, and the Academy of Management Review, as well as serving as president of the Academy of Management. Address: Marriott School of Management, Brigham Young University, 4450 ELWC, Provo, UT 84602; e-mail: dwhetten@byu.edu.