

Organization Science

Publication details, including instructions for authors and subscription information:
<http://pubsonline.informs.org>

About Authors

To cite this article:

(2002) About Authors. Organization Science 13(2):221-222. <https://doi.org/10.1287/orse.13.2.221.532>

Full terms and conditions of use: <https://pubsonline.informs.org/Publications/Librarians-Portal/PubsOnLine-Terms-and-Conditions>

This article may be used only for the purposes of research, teaching, and/or private study. Commercial use or systematic downloading (by robots or other automatic processes) is prohibited without explicit Publisher approval, unless otherwise noted. For more information, contact permissions@informs.org.

The Publisher does not warrant or guarantee the article's accuracy, completeness, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or non-infringement. Descriptions of, or references to, products or publications, or inclusion of an advertisement in this article, neither constitutes nor implies a guarantee, endorsement, or support of claims made of that product, publication, or service.

© 2002 INFORMS

Please scroll down for article—it is on subsequent pages

With 12,500 members from nearly 90 countries, INFORMS is the largest international association of operations research (O.R.) and analytics professionals and students. INFORMS provides unique networking and learning opportunities for individual professionals, and organizations of all types and sizes, to better understand and use O.R. and analytics tools and methods to transform strategic visions and achieve better outcomes. For more information on INFORMS, its publications, membership, or meetings visit <http://www.informs.org>

About Authors

Paul Almeida ("Are Firms Superior to Alliances and Markets? An Empirical Test of Cross-Border Knowledge Building") Paul Almeida is Assistant Professor in the area of strategic management at Georgetown University. His teaching and research focus is on the strategic aspects of technology and knowledge management and international business. He is especially interested in the study of the mechanisms of inter- and intrafirm knowledge transfer. Professor Almeida's research focuses on the semiconductor, biotechnology, and software industries. He has been awarded the Joseph F. Le Moine Award for Graduate and Undergraduate Teaching Excellence, Best Professor Award for Executive Programs at Georgetown University, and was listed as one of the Best Professors at Georgetown by Business Week magazine. He has recent articles published in Management Science, Research Policy, Strategic Management Journal and Small Business Economics. Address: McDonough School of Business, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. 20057; e-mail: {almeidap@georgetown.edu}.

Jaideep Anand ("Agency and Institutions: National Divergences in Diversification Behavior") is Assistant Professor of the Corporate Strategy and International Business Group at the University of Michigan Business School. He earned a B. Tech. in Mechanical Engineering from the Indian Institute of Technology, and a Master's and Ph.D. from The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania. His research interests include the redeployment and context-specificity of firm capabilities, firm scope, and mergers and acquisitions. His research has been published in the Strategic Management Journal, Organization Science, the Journal of International Business Studies, and the Columbia Journal of World Business, and has been referenced in The Economist, Financial Times, Toronto Globe and Mail, and several other periodicals. Address: University of Michigan Business School, Ann Arbor, MI 48109-1234; telephone: (734) 764-2310; fax: (734) 764-2557; e-mail: {jayanand@umich.edu}.

Amy C. Edmondson ("The Local and Variegated Nature of Learning in Organizations: A Group-Level Perspective") is Associate Professor of Business Administration at the Graduate School of Business Administration, Harvard University, Boston, MA. Her research investigates learning processes in teams and organizations. She recently published papers in Administrative Science Quarterly, Research in Organizational Behavior, and Management Science. She is editor, with Bertrand Moingeon, of Organizational Learning and Competitive Advantage (Sage Publications, 1996). She received her Ph.D. in organizational behavior from Harvard University. Address: Harvard University, Graduate School of Business Administration, Boston, MA 02163; e-mail: {aedmondson@hbs.edu}.

Robert M. Grant ("Are Firms Superior to Alliances and Markets? An Empirical Test of Cross-Border Knowledge Building") is Professor in the area of strategic management at Georgetown University. He specializes in business and corporate strategy. His current research focuses on organizational capability, knowledge management, diversification strategies, and strategic and organizational change in the energy sector. Professor Grant's recent books include Contemporary Strategy Analysis, which is widely used in MBA programs in Europe and North America, and Re- structuring and Strategic Change in the Oil Industry. He is a member of the editorial board of the Strategic Management Journal and Strategy & Leadership. Address: McDonough School of Business, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C. 20057; e-mail: {grantr@georgetown.edu}.

Bruce Kogut ("Agency and Institutions: National Divergences in Diversification Behavior") is the Dr. Felix Zandman Professor of International Management at The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, and Codirector of the Reginald H. Jones Center for Management Policy, Strategy, and Organization. Dr. Kogut joined The Wharton School in 1983, and he has been a visiting scholar at the Humboldt University in Berlin, Stockholm School of Economics, Science Center Berlin, and the École Polytechnique in Paris. He has published widely on such topics as labor markets for ideas and the effects on organizations, strategic alliances and networks, technology transfer and diffusion, privatization, and the competitiveness of countries. Address: The Wharton School, University of Pennsylvania, 2041 Steinberg Hall-Dietrich Hall, Philadelphia, PA 19104-6370; e-mail: {kogut@wharton.upenn.edu}.

Kenneth L. Kraemer ("Exploring the Role of Information Technology in Organizational Downsizing: A Tale of Two American Cities") holds the Taco Bell Chair in IT for Management in the Graduate School of Management, and he is Director of the Center for Research on Information Technology and Organizations (CRITO) at the University of California, Irvine. He has studied management, information technology, and organizations for over 30 years. He received his BA from the University of Notre Dame in 1959 and both his MA and Ph.D. in public policy and management from the University of Southern California in 1965 and 1967. Dr. Kraemer's research interests include the management of information technology (IT); the organizational, social, and political implications of technology; the effectiveness of national policies for the production and use of the technology; the contributions of the technology to productivity and economic growth; and the role of technology in developing countries. Dr. Kraemer's books include Computers and Politics, People and Computers and Datawars (Columbia University Press, 1982, 1985, 1987), Modeling as Negotiating (Ablex 1985), Wired Cities (G. K. Hall 1987), Managing Information Systems (Jossey-Bass 1989), The Information Systems Research Challenge: Survey Research Methods (Harvard Business School Press 1991), and Asia's Computer Challenge (Oxford University Press 1998). Professor Kraemer has been conducting research in 12 Asia Pacific countries for the past 8 years and just completed extension of that work to Brazil and Mexico. He is now engaged in a 5-year study, with researchers from 10 countries, of the influence of national environments and policy on the globalization and impact of the Internet and e-commerce. Address: Center for Research on Information Technology, Graduate School of Management, University of California, Irvine, 3200 Berkeley Place, Irvine, CA 92697-4650; e-mail: {kkraemer@uci.edu}.

Alain Pinsonneault ("Exploring the Role of Information Technology in Organizational Downsizing: A Tale of Two American Cities") is the Imasco Professor of Information Systems in the Faculty of Management at McGill University. He received his Ph.D. in information systems from the University of California, Irvine.

His current research interests include the organizational and individual impacts of information technology, Enterprise Resources Planning systems implementation, the effects of electronic commerce on customer relationships, group support systems, management of IT departments and the usage and impacts of information technology on health. He has published papers in Management Science, Management Information Systems Quarterly, Information Systems Research, the Journal of Management Information Systems, Decision Support Systems, and the European Journal of Operational Research. Address: Faculty of Management, McGill University, 1001 Sherbrooke St. West, Montréal, Quebec, Canada H3A 1G5; e-mail: <pinsonneault@management.mcgill.ca>.

Nelson P. Repenning ("A Simulation-Based Approach to Understanding the Dynamics of Innovation Implementation") is an assistant professor of management at the MIT Sloan School of Management. His work focuses on understanding the factors that contribute to the successful implementation, execution, and design of business processes. Current research interests include organizational change, process improvement applied to new product design, and the development of cross-disciplinary management theory. His work draws on a number of modeling methods including simulation, nonlinear dynamics, and game and contract theory. He is currently working with MIT's Center for Innovation in Product Development and the Harley-Davidson Motor Company. Address: E53-339, 30 Wadsworth Street, Cambridge, MA 02142; e-mail: <nelsonr@mit.edu>. You can learn more about his research by visiting <<http://web.mit.edu/nelsonr/www>>.

Marguerite Schneider ("A Stakeholder Model of Organization Leadership") received her Ph.D. in organization management from Rutgers University. She is Assistant Professor of Management at The School of Management, New Jersey Institute of Technology. Prior to her academic career, she worked in corporate strategic planning within the financial services industry and in program development within academic administration. Her primary areas of research are governance, leadership, and public sector organizations. Her work has recently been published in the Journal of Management and Governance, Administration & Society, and the Public Management Review. She has presented several papers related to these topics at conferences, including at the Academy of Management. Address: New Jersey Institute of Technology, School of Management, University Heights, Newark, NJ 07102-1982; e-mail: <mshneid@adm.njit.edu>.

Jaeyong Song ("Are Firms Superior to Alliances and Markets? An Empirical Test of Cross-Border Knowledge Building") is Assistant Professor of Strategy at Yonsei University, Korea. Before coming to Yonsei University in 2001, he was Assistant Professor of Management at Columbia University. He received his Ph.D. at The Wharton School. He won both the Barry M. Richman Best Dissertation Award of the Academy of Management and the Gunnar Hedlund Best Dissertation Award from the European International Business Association in 1999. His current research interests include modes of (global) knowledge sourcing, such as the engineer mobility and overseas R&D activities; technology upgrading, coordination, and configuration mechanisms in the global network; network externalities and increasing returns in emerging knowledge-based industries; and the impacts of the Internet on corporate and global strategies. Address: Department of Management, Yonsei University, Shinchon-Dong 134, Seodaemooon-Ku, Seoul, 120-749, Korea; e-mail: <jsong@yonsei.ac.kr>.

Wenpin Tsai ("Social Structure of 'Coopetition' Within a Multiunit Organization: Coordination, Competition, and Intraorganizational Knowledge Sharing") is Assistant Professor of Management in the Smeal College of Business Administration at the Pennsylvania State University. He received his Ph.D. in strategic and international management at the London Business School. His current research interests include social capital, organizational learning, business unit strategy, and the evolution of intra- and interorganizational networks. Address: The Pennsylvania State University, The Smeal College of Business Administration, Department of Management and Organization, 435 Beam Business Administration Building, University Park, PA 16802-1914; e-mail: <wtsai@psu.edu>.

Gordon Walker ("Agency and Institutions: National Divergences in Diversification Behavior") is Professor and Chair of the Department of Strategy and Entrepreneurship at the Cox School, Southern Methodist University. Address: Southern Methodist University, Cox School of Business, P.O. Box 750333, Dallas, TX 75275; e-mail: <gwalker@mail.cox.smu.edu>.