

Organization Science

Publication details, including instructions for authors and subscription information:
<http://pubsonline.informs.org>

About Authors

To cite this article:

(1991) About Authors. Organization Science 2(2):237-238. <https://doi.org/10.1287/orse.2.2.237>

Full terms and conditions of use: <https://pubsonline.informs.org/Publications/Librarians-Portal/PubsOnLine-Terms-and-Conditions>

This article may be used only for the purposes of research, teaching, and/or private study. Commercial use or systematic downloading (by robots or other automatic processes) is prohibited without explicit Publisher approval, unless otherwise noted. For more information, contact permissions@informs.org.

The Publisher does not warrant or guarantee the article's accuracy, completeness, merchantability, fitness for a particular purpose, or non-infringement. Descriptions of, or references to, products or publications, or inclusion of an advertisement in this article, neither constitutes nor implies a guarantee, endorsement, or support of claims made of that product, publication, or service.

© 1991 INFORMS

Please scroll down for article—it is on subsequent pages

With 12,500 members from nearly 90 countries, INFORMS is the largest international association of operations research (O.R.) and analytics professionals and students. INFORMS provides unique networking and learning opportunities for individual professionals, and organizations of all types and sizes, to better understand and use O.R. and analytics tools and methods to transform strategic visions and achieve better outcomes. For more information on INFORMS, its publications, membership, or meetings visit <http://www.informs.org>

ABOUT AUTHORS

Janice M. Beyer ("Cultural Leadership in Organizations") is Rebecca L. Gale Regents Professor in Business, College of Business Administration, University of Texas, CBA 4.202, Austin, Texas 78712 (telephone: (512) 471-8825; Bitnet: MTDB744@UTA3081; fax: (512) 471-3937). She earned her Ph.D. degree at Cornell University and has published a book and more than 50 articles on a wide range of topics. Her current research concerns corporate childcare programs, journal refereeing, and cultures in organizations. She and Professor Harrison M. Trice are currently working on a book to be entitled Cultures in Work Organizations.

Louis W. Fry ("Organizational Subcultures in a Soft Bureaucracy: Resistance Behind the Myth and Facade of an Official Culture") formerly was a professor in the Management Department at Texas A & M University and the University of Washington. He received a B.S. degree in Industrial Engineering from Southern Methodist University in 1970, an M.B.A. from American University in 1973, and a Ph.D. in Organization Theory and Research Methods from Ohio State University in 1978.

His research and consulting interests include the impact of environment, technology and structure on organizational effectiveness, the management of creativity and innovation in custom technology organizations, and the influence of interdependence on the management of nonhierarchical, loosely-coupled organizations. He has presented scholarly papers at national and international symposia and published articles and reviews in journals such as The Academy of Management Journal, Journal of Occupational Behavior, Administrative Science Quarterly, Journal of Management, Journal of Marketing Research, Public Choice, Human Organization, Journal of Applied Psychology, and the Academy of Management Review.

He recently left academe to practice what he preached and founded LWF Enterprises, Inc., to pursue various entrepreneurial opportunities. His major project at present is a venture to create and take public an organization that provides financing and organizational support for franchised custom homebuilders. He can be reached at 4250 Five Points Road, Suite 7, Corpus Christi, TX 78410 (telephone: (512) 241-9797).

Jeannie Gaines ("Organizational Subcultures in a Soft Bureaucracy: Resistance Behind the Myth and Facade of an Official Culture") is an Assistant Professor of Management at the University of South Florida at St. Petersburg, 140 Seventh Avenue South, St. Petersburg, FL 33701-5016 (telephone: (813) 893-9151). She received a Ph.D. in Business Administration from the University of Florida in 1984. Her research interests include physical and emotional danger at work, blue collar stress, social support and physical exercise as moderators of the stress-strain relationship, and employee rights at work. She has published in the Academy of Management Journal, Journal of Labor Research, Industrial Relations, and Journal of Organizational Behavior.

John M. Jermier ("Organizational Subcultures in a Soft Bureaucracy: Resistance Behind the Myth and Facade of an Official Culture") is Professor of Organizational Behavior, College of Business, University of South Florida, Tampa, FL 33620-5500 (telephone: (813) 974-4155; fax: (813) 974-3030; Bitnet: DMHAEAA@CFRVM). He earned his M.B.A., M.A. (Public Policy and Administration), and Ph.D. (Administrative Science) degrees from The Ohio State University. His writings on leadership, power and conflict, and research methodology have appeared in sociology, anthropology, psychology, industrial and labor relations, and management journals. His current research is centered on the interplay between forms of organizational control and patterns of employee resistance. He is also interested in the varieties of radical environmentalism and their impacts on business firms.

Mary Lind ("The Influence of a Convergence in Understanding Between Technology Providers and Users on Information Technology Innovativeness") is an Assistant Professor in the School of Business and Economics at North Carolina A & T State University. Her current research focuses on the impact of individual information processing activities including computer based information processing systems on organizational effectiveness. Dr. Lind has published articles in Database, Information and Management, and Information Systems Research and has served as a reviewer for Information Systems Research and Organization Science. Her Ph.D. is in Business Administration (Information Systems) from the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. Address: School of Business and Economics, North Carolina A & T State University, 1915 Rosecrest Drive, Greensboro, NC 27408-6215 (telephone: (919) 334-7656; Bitnet: MLIND@ECSVAX).

Alan D. Meyer ("Visual Data in Organizational Research") is Associate Professor of Management at the University of Oregon. His research interests lie in the areas of organizational strategy, design, innovation, and change. He is currently conducting an investigation of how hospitals evaluate, adopt, and implement leading-edge technological innovations, and he is also collecting data for a longitudinal study of organizations' responses to quantum changes in industry structure and boundaries, supported by the Basic Research Unit of the Army Research Institute. He received his B.A. in Economics from the University of Washington, and his doctorate in Organizational Behavior and Industrial Relations from the University of California, Berkeley. He serves on the Administrative Science Quarterly editorial board, and is a Consulting Editor for the Academy of Management Journal. Address: Graduate School of Management, University of Oregon, Eugene, OR 97403.

John W. Slocum, Jr. ("Organizational Subcultures in a Soft Bureaucracy: Resistance Behind the Myth and Facade of an Official Culture") holds the O. Paul Corley Chair in Organizational Behavior, Cox School of Business, Southern Methodist University. He has been President of the Academy of Management; Editor, Academy of Management Journal; Associate Editor, Academy of Management Executive; and is a Senior Editor of Organization Science. He is the author of more than 90 articles and five management texts. He is currently interested in intraorganizational mobility patterns and how cultural and structural attributes of organizations affect managers' career paths. A secondary research interest focuses on how global and multido-mestic business strategies affect the design of reward systems and human resource practices in these firms. Address: Edwin L. Cox School of Business, Southern Methodist University, Dallas, TX 75275 (telephone: (214) 692-3157).

Harrison M. Trice ("Cultural Leadership in Organizations") is Professor of Organizational Behavior, New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations, Cornell University, 379 Ives Hall, Ithaca, New York 14853 (telephone: (607) 255-5481; fax: (607) 255-7774). He earned his Ph.D. in Sociology at the University of Wisconsin and has published 12 books, numerous book chapters, and over 100 articles on such topics as workplace programs dealing with mental illness and substance abuse; occupations; and organizational structure, culture, and change. He is currently writing books on both organizational cultures and occupational cultures.

Robert Zmud ("The Influence of a Convergence in Understanding Between Technology Providers and Users on Information Technology Innovativeness") is a Professor and Thomas L. Williams, Jr., Eminent Scholar in Management Information Systems in the Information and Management Science Department at the College of Business, Florida State University. His current research interests focus on the impact of information technology in facilitating a variety of organizational behaviors and on organizational efforts involved with planning, managing, and diffusing information technology. Dr. Zmud currently is an editor with two journals, Organization Science and Communications of the ACM, and serves on the boards of three others. Both his Ph.D. (University of Arizona) and his S.M. (MIT) degrees are in management. Address: College of Business, Florida State University, Tallahassee, FL 32306-1042 (telephone: 904-644-5508; Bitnet: ZMUD@FSU).